

Cooking Up Cures

In May, the Sunbeam Foundation—dedicated to advancing the research and treatment of pediatric bone cancer—joined forces with downtown Los Altos restaurants Aldo Los Altos, Beausejour, Maltby's, Peony, Pompeii, Ricks Café, and renowned Chef Jesse Cool to fight cancer with a progressive dinner and an evening of celebration.

1 On hand were Debbie Rosenberg, Andy Grose, and columnist Janet Norton 2 Lauren Friedman, Gentry's Jennifer Massoni, San Francisco 49er Eric Heitmann, and Gentry's Emily Heitmann 3 Ron Bucher, Sunbeam Foundation's Vicki and Pete LaBoskey, and Dr. Theresa Frank 4 Michael and Susan Vartain after dining at Aldo Los Altos 5 Sunbeam Foundation grant recipient Dr. Alejandro Sweet-Cordero of Stanford University and Sunbeam Foundation President Brad Wolfe, who performed with his band 6 Chef Jesse Cool prepped a dessert favorite for a special cooking demonstration. 7 Katie Barnes led her group down the streets of Los Altos as part of the event's innovative progressive dinner. 8 San Francisco-based Keeva A Cappella singers serenaded diners throughout the evening. ➤

PHOTOS: JOHN CILLIA/JCPHOTOS.CARBONMADE.COM